3 Coin Master faded a bit at the end two starts back, but he held on well. He should be considered early in the betting. 7 Huit won well last time out, but was scratched for a fever afterwards. Early with luck from a wide draw. 8 Sun's Exciting is looking for the form that gave him five wins in eight starts last year. One of many contenders in the race. 12 Yavapai Point is poorly drawn. Late attack in the last run and had some energy left. Always an advantage that the driver knows the horse.

11 Pyckolina is our top pick in a tricky cold-blooded race. She should catch up to the horses with a 20-meter handicap early on, and then she can finish well. 7 Ängsthea should have won two starts ago to get a better rating. She has good speed, but her form is a bit unclear. 9 Kaksi was good as second behind a strong horse like Alma Prins two starts ago. She can be a bit inconsistent, but if she has a good day, she can beat many. 3 Pysola got her first career win three starts ago. She has shown continued good form since then and is an outsider.

6 Jaguni is our top pick. It is the first start for trainer Daniel Redén, so it is a bit difficult to predict, but the post position is good, and he could take the lead right away. 14 Gendry never found room between horses in the seasonal debut and seemed to have some energy left. Can win now if everything falls into place. 12 Bravo Umut Rodi had a bit of tired legs in the win two starts ago, but the impression was still good. A clear contender if he avoids a mistake. 3 Galax Brick looked nice in the debut win two starts ago. One of several outsiders in a tricky race.

1 Havannah Line scored her first victory in her new stable last time out, leading from the inside post. Although she faces tougher competition here, she has a decent chance. 8 Firefoot made a mistake in a tight situation last time out. Has got a run after a break and is capable of performing well with some luck from an outside post. 12 Dorothea Mil is expected to improve with her seasonal debut behind her. She has earned the most money and is worth considering. 4 Perfect Match H.C. is capable of more than what she has shown in her last two starts. She is an outsider.

8 Mellby Imperial looked very good in his return after a long absence last time out. In a high-quality race for the lowest class, he gets the top pick despite starting from a difficult post position. 4 Baltimore Face has left a great impression lately. Number four in the circular start is not ideal, but with a chance to win if he can race without any errors. 6 Even Younger got an impossible journey in the last run - we forget about that race. He left a good impression with his win the race before. 7 Northman Maxus is chasing his fifth consecutive win. He is on the way up and must be counted among the top contenders.

12 One Cristal faced tough horses last year as a three-year-old and was among the finalists in the Breeders Crown. We still believe in him despite the difficult post position in this race. 10 H.C.'s Crazy Horse finished strongly in his first race of the year last time out. He has previously won over 2640 meters, so that's not a concern. 9 Mellby Indigo took over the lead after just over half a lap last time out and won easily. He has a total of 13 wins in 24 starts. 2 Money Smile has been waiting for this race. He has a good starting position and shouldn't be overlooked.

8 A Perfect Face competed against the best four-year-old mares last year. She had a good seasonal debut last time out where she had to do some hard work in the last 600 meters. She has a reasonable chance if she can avoid any problems from post position eight. 3 Heroine Darling has had a good winter and has a good starting position behind the gate. She made the most of her outside position in her last race. 10 Capital Gain C.C. won right after a break. It will be a bit tougher competition this time, but he can finish strongly with the right trip. 4 Illfindmywayhome likes the short distance and should be considered right away in his seasonal debut.

7 Guli Fantom is doing everything right at the moment. He won his last race with energy left, even though he didn't really like the surface. He will likely go for the lead and be hard to beat. 13 Alm Randers is the main challenger. He is perhaps at his sharpest when he is up near the front early on in the race, but can also come from behind. 4 Guli Frodo has a slightly tricky post position, starting from number four in the circular start, but if he can race without any errors, he has the ability to finish among the top three. 3 Nordvin had been away for a while before his last race. He could potentially take the lead here and then give it away.

4 Readly Lavec sprinted to the lead from a similar post position at Momarken in his last race against top horses and won impressively. With that performance in mind, he should be the first horse on the list. 3 Hannibal Face ended last year with a victory in the bronze division. He has the capacity to do well in the silver division if he performs at his best. 9 Marre's Dreamboy is capable of more than what he showed in his last race and is interesting with driver Kihlström on board this time. 2 Mr Mah Can looked good in his first start for the new trainer in the last seasonal debut. With a good post position, he is an interesting outsider pick.

4 Samaritana didn't perform at her best at Romme last time out. Better behind the gate now and the driver knows her well - our first choice in the open mare race. 7 Invidia is also driven by a driver who knows her well. Won in a very convincing manner last time and is an early choice despite the draw. 12 Ninja's Kiss has earned the most in this race and therefore has the worst draw. Has good strength and can do it tough. 5 Ballerina Indika was brave from outside the leader last time out. Will soon score the first win of the year - an outsider.

11 Mister Hercules has won his last three seasonal debuts, so we're not afraid of any rustiness. A highly capable horse who despite a bad draw gets the tip directly. 3 Ultion Face would probably have been ranked first if we were completely confident in his form. Did not convince last time, but the capacity is high. 10 Mellby Jinx gave a very good impression in the last seasonal debut. If he can solve the draw, he can fight for top places here as well. 7 Missile Hill is consistent and good. Has not competed since November, but has a chance to place directly.

2 Linus Boy is a reliable horse under the saddle and won despite running outside the leader throughout the race last time out. He is the top pick in a nice ridden race. 1 Kung Edward defeated the top pick when they met on Sollvalla in February. He has continued to show good form since then and will challenge early once again. 3 McGarret performed well in his seasonal debut last time out and should improve with that race under his belt. He rarely puts in a bad performance under the saddle. 6 Brillant Madrik has not been in great form in his last two starts and is an outsider.
