11 Zenith Millpond is good for its class and has significantly more hardness than its competitors. If it resolves itself from the starting position, the sprint bites well. 5 You To Optimize'em has shown speed resources that go a long way. Vi should, from the talk of the stable, expect a similar performance as before, which should go a long way. 8 SG Adele will compete barefoot for the first time. 4 Aprilia Zoot comes from a nice victory and can open fast in the volt start.

2 Speed Matters have run under his belt and stand perfectly inside this track staircase. He is fast out and there should be a good chance to lead from start to finish. 10 Loaded Olle thrives best in in front and has 4/5 wins from the front. You won't get there now, but it possible quickly initially and then his sprint should bite well. 6 Cheeky Doc was solid last time and comes from a stable with good form. 3 Banana Joe responded well to shoe shock last fall.

1 Global Experience has done okay, but without really letting go, which makes it exciting with new trainer. He has the draw for leadership, a position he has not tested before, but which should suit him well. 7 River Hill performs a little unevenly, but has enough speed to sprint down most of the current class. 5 La Vie En Rose has a lot inside and if she just releases can win. 8 Even You is sharp if he is allowed to run from behind.

5 London Boko made a great impression last time. lane five in a volt start is not the best, but the horse has solved tight tracks before. If he does it again, he should have good opportunities to drive his way to the lead. 11 Topping Artist doesn't always have the style, but is the one who clearly showed the best speed in the field. 9 Corona Park had a tough race last time. If it only flaps better, there is momentum to sprint to victory. 7 Tyson Renegade has good for this class.

3 Illfindmywayhome has long shown good speed, but also some messy tendencies. From a perfect track, there is probably no talk of the horse attack towards the lead. Once there, he becomes difficult to take down. 1 Powerbank doesn't always get it right, but is good for the class when he's in order. 9 Flexible Launcher was really solid and if he is as good again, it can go the way again. 10 Bugatti Hall is capable and should be fitted with run under his belt.
