6 He's From Heaven has been really strong under the saddle and shown good form. Will face strong competitors here. Still a good chance. 7 Kash Keeper has done well most of his career. Has shown that he likes to compete under the saddle, seven of 13 ridden starts have resulted in wins or second places. The form is hard to predict after a two-month break from racing. 8 Observe'em is very capable and makes an interesting start here. 2 Global Opportunity scored a good win from the front in the last race. Tries to repeat that effort here.

2 Can't Be Ruled is matched in quite good company and was extremely good last time when she simply disappeared. Perfect starting position here and Felicia Molin knows the horse well. Should have a good chance here too. 10 Kant'e has two wins in a row and is an early contender. Needs some racing luck from here but the opposition is getting tougher too. 6 Viewing Window is very consistent and good. Has a run under his belt after a break. 3 Pure Joline faces tough conditions but is capable and speedy.

15 Tekno Tana is one of Sweden's best mares. Made her comeback last time and was really good, but will be even improved by that run under her belt. Is strong and fast, which makes her difficult to resist at the end even though the conditions are tough here. 1 Nume Bris opens fast and will reach a good position straight away. In the fight for victory. 9 Tiras Perla has really nice speed and she has got a couple of runs under her belt for the new trainer. Can finish strongly. 6 Brisgås Milly is in better form than the results show.
