7 Rally Juvelen has scored a couple of convincing wins and had a good finish as third in a tough race last time out. With shorter time between races now, he should have a good chance without a mistake. 8 Kattens Aladin showed his fine potential in a sprint win two races ago. Not reliable but very speedy. 5 Zenith Millpond made an early attack in the last run and was simply the best. Tougher competition now, but in top form. 1 Polly Laday has won both her races from the front and is clearly at her best in that position. Nice number today.

14 Eld Prinsen has a top pedigree and also showed tremendous speed in winning two races out of two as a three-year-old last year. Normally in a class of his own despite the seasonal debut. 3 Eskils Balder had a good start for the new trainer last time out and won a cheap race from the front. Tougher competition now but an interesting start. 5 Hällgårds Dagny did everything right in the debut, and despite being outside the leader in the last lap, it was a fine win. A strong challenger. 13 Carbonit won the debut and has shown potential. He's capable of setting a new record if he runs without errors.

11 The Real Ragnar is often on the podium, with six top-three finishes and three wins in ten races. Solid and with a good chance. 1 Staro Quincy has been a bit slow at the start of the season, but finished nicely after a late opening last time out. Improving. 2 Speedy K. is a fast type who fits well on the short distance. Closely beaten last time out and chases revenge. 3 Ares has shown great form in his starts at Solvalla and deserves a win. He's dropping in class.

2 Melinda has started the season with two wins from the front. There are more gears to show and she's set to lead again today. 12 Önnes Tekno behaved well last time out and set a new record as second behind a sharp competitor. Under strong development and an offensive performance is expected. 9 Guli Bamse has been improving steadily over the last six months and lost in the lead last time out. Tighter starts and on the way up. 11 Slotts Tore was very impressive in winning last autumn and has shown good speed for this class.

5 Denali Doc has two consecutive wins after doing the hard work outside the leader and back in full form. An all-round type and a good chance to reach the lead from here. 7 Albacete has a tendency to complicate things for himself but has good capacity for this field. Driven by a professional now. 12 Sweet and Wild did an amazing job in the seasonal debut, finishing just closely beaten after racing three-wide all the way. 1 Vivacious did well after a good trip last time out. Could get a good run from the inside and is possible with some luck.

2 Nordic Star Tooma led from the same number two starts ago and was never threatened in an easy win. Erik Adielsson is up and has a good chance from the lead. 5 No Mare Z.A.R. has several runner-up finishes with positive signs lately. A talented closer and deserves a win. A given contender. 6 Ploquepin has had a good season and improved throughout the year. Has reloaded now and faces suitable opposition. 8 Again Kronos seems to be in good form this year and comes from a good second spot. Would prefer over-pace.
